Q013 [Case Study]

Read the following carefully and answer ALL questions below.

In March, China's National People's Congress held its annual plenary session. Over 2,900 deputies attended. The NPC elected the President of the PRC and decided on the Premier of the State Council (nominated by the President). The NPC also approved the national economic and social development plan and the state budget, including the annual defence budget. Later in the year, after a ministerial vacancy arose, the NPC Standing Committee convened a special session and appointed a new minister. During the same period, the National Commission of Supervision announced an investigation into a senior official for "serious violations of discipline and law," who was later removed from office. The Supreme People's Procuratorate separately reported it had prosecuted tens of thousands of corruption cases that year.

(a) Using paragraph 1, identify TWO powers the NPC exercised. For EACH, name the power and state the specific action. (6 marks)

💡 Hint: Power 1 = appointment power (elected President, decided on Premier). Power 2 = power to decide major issues (approved plan & budget). Name BOTH the power AND the evidence.

(b) Explain why the NPCSC, rather than the full NPC, could appoint the new minister. Explain the constitutional relationship between the NPC and the NPCSC. (4 marks)

💡 Hint: NPCSC = permanent organ; exercises NPC powers when the NPC is not in session; accountable to the NPC.

(c) Identify which institution investigated the official, state the type of violation, and state ONE power that institution exercises. (3 marks)

💡 Hint: NCS = highest supervisory organ; duty-related violations; investigates independently.

(d) State how the Supreme People's Procuratorate differs from the NCS, and state which institution acts FIRST. (4 marks)

💡 Hint: NCS investigates duty-related violations; the Procuratorate prosecutes in court. They act in sequence.

Q034 [Case Study]

Read the following carefully and answer ALL questions below.

China imports much of its crude oil from the Middle East by sea, through the narrow Strait of Hormuz and Strait of Malacca — waterways that can be blocked. To reduce this risk, China has built land corridors under the Belt and Road Initiative, such as the China–Pakistan Economic Corridor and the China–Europe Railway Express. Since 2008, Chinese naval task forces have carried out escort missions in the Gulf of Aden, protecting both Chinese and foreign vessels. The BRI lists “coordinating development and security” as one of its development directions.

(a) Identify the field of national security threatened by over-reliance on the Strait of Malacca, and explain why. (3 marks)

 Hint: Link ‘oil / energy supply’ to the correct security field.

(b) Explain how the land corridors mentioned help address this risk. (2 marks)

 Hint: Compare land vs sea dependence.

(c) The escort missions protect “Chinese and foreign vessels.” State the TWO fields of security involved and give one wider significance. (3 marks)

 Hint: Two security fields + one international benefit.

(d) “The BRI is about economics, not security.” Do you agree? Give ONE reason with evidence from the scenario. (3 marks)

 Hint: Use the ‘coordinating development and security’ development direction.

ANSWERS (Self-check after completing all questions)

Reference answers only. In exams: use full sentences, cite specific data, and structure long answers with TPEC (Topic–Point–Evidence–Comment).

Q001. → B The Constitution has the highest legal effect; all laws comply with it. (D is a trap: it is the NPC, not the State Council/President, that enacts and amends the Constitution.)

Q002. → B The NPC is the highest state organ of power; the other six are created by, accountable to, and supervised by it. (A/C/D are seniority traps.)

Q003. → A i, ii and iv only. iii is WRONG — the CMC (not the NPC) commands the PLA; the NPC creates the CMC but does not itself command the military.

Q004. → B The NPCSC, as the permanent organ of the NPC, exercises its powers when the NPC is not in session. (A is a plausible-sounding trap — it depends on session status, not the President's location.)

Q005. → A i, ii and iii only. iv is WRONG — the Constitution does not require the President to be a CPC member; the age requirement is 45.

Q006. → C The NCS is the highest supervisory organ and carries out anti-corruption / supervisory work. (B is a trap — the Procuratorate prosecutes; the NCS investigates duty-related violations first.)

Q007. → C The Premier is nominated by the President, decided upon by the NPC, and appointed by the President.

Q008. → D The CMC is the highest military leadership and commands the armed forces. (C is a trap — the NPC creates the CMC but does not command the military.)

Q013(b). The NPCSC is the permanent organ of the NPC and exercises NPC powers (incl. filling vacancies) when the NPC is out of session (2); it is created by and accountable to the NPC, so its acts carry NPC authority between annual sessions (2).

Q013(c). The National Commission of Supervision (1); duty-related violations / abuse of power / bribery (1); it independently exercises supervisory power and investigates duty-related violations (1).

Q013(d). The NCS investigates duty-related violations and gathers evidence (1–2); the Procuratorate reviews, approves arrests and files public prosecutions in court (1–2). The NCS acts first, then refers the case to the Procuratorate (1).

Q014(a). Source A shows the other six are all created by and accountable to the NPC (2); this proves the NPC's superior, supervisory position as the highest organ of power (1).

Q014(b). Error in (1): the President is NOT the most powerful — Source A shows the President is created by and accountable to the NPC, so the NPC is supreme (2). Error in (2): the NCS (supervisory — investigates duty-related violations) and the Court (adjudicatory — tries cases) do DIFFERENT jobs (2). Claim (3) is correct.

- Q031. Policy coordination; facilities connectivity; unimpeded trade; financial integration; people-to-people bonds.
- Q032. 26 December 2008 (1); any one of: 45 batches / over 35,000 personnel / over 7,200 vessels escorted (1).
- Q033. Land corridors (Silk Road Economic Belt) improve land transport and reduce over-dependence on maritime routes, strengthening resource security (up to 2); Gulf of Aden escort missions since 2008 safeguard military security and overseas interests security by protecting Chinese vessels/personnel (up to 2).
- Q034(a). Resource security (1): China needs stable, timely, sufficient energy; the narrow straits can be blocked (1), disrupting energy supply, the economy and livelihoods (1).
- Q034(b). Land corridors improve land transport and reduce excessive dependence on sea lanes (1); if a sea route is blocked, energy/goods can still reach China, strengthening resource security (1).
- Q034(c). Military security and overseas interests security (2); wider significance (any one, 1): increases China's international influence / upholds UN resolutions & international law / promotes naval cooperation.
- Q034(d). Disagree (1): the scenario shows BRI directly supports security — land corridors strengthen resource security and escorts protect overseas interests (1); the BRI lists “coordinating development and security,” so economy and security advance together (1). (Accept reasoned response.)
- Q035(a). By Aug 2023, 152 countries and 32 international organisations had signed BRI agreements (1–2); the China–Europe Railway Express had operated 77,000+ trains connecting 217 cities in 25 countries (1).
- Q035(b). (1) “Handful of poor Asian countries” is wrong — 152 countries across Asia, Europe, Africa, Latin America & the South Pacific take part (Source A) (2). (2) “Nothing to do with culture or security” is wrong — BRI promotes cultural exchange and strengthens national security: land routes (resource security) and Gulf of Aden escorts (military & overseas interests security, Source B) (2).
- Q035(c). L4 (7–8): uses all sources; links BRI trade scale (Source A) to economic/resource security; names military & overseas interests security with Gulf of Aden data (Source B); balanced, justified conclusion (e.g. BRI broadly strengthens security via trade diversification + land routes + escorts, though challenges remain). L3 (5–6): 2 sources, one security type. L2 (3–4): describes sources. L1 (1–2): restates.
- Q036. → B China was the world's largest merchandise (goods) exporter in 2023 (and 5th largest in business services).
- Q037. → C An embargo is a complete ban. (A = import duty/tariff; B = import quota; D = export subsidy — all traps.)
- Q038. → A i and iii only. ii and iv are challenges, not opportunities.
- Q039. → B Factories relocating out of China (e.g. to Vietnam, Mexico) to avoid tariffs. (D describes US tariffs — a related trap.)
- Q040. → B Trade conflicts reduce trade volume, raise production costs/tariffs, weaken investor confidence and raise consumer prices.
- Q041. → B Negotiation, establishing good foreign relations, and expanding domestic demand.
- FB 3.2(i). (1) merchandise (2) tariff; quota (3) embargo (4) CEPA (5) entrepot (6) protectionism (7) de-Chinisation (8) security; Bay (9) subsidies (10) logistics (11) negotiation

Q042. Any two of: export subsidies; import duties; import quota; import restrictions; embargo.

Q043. Any two developed: drop in trade volume / higher production costs & lower competitiveness (firms may relocate) / weaker investor confidence & stock-market decline / higher consumer prices (passed to people). (2 each)

Q044. It helps the country eliminate/resolve risks and resist external shocks (1), ensuring continuous, healthy development — e.g. maintaining multilateral cooperation and increasing economic strength (1).

Q045(a). The US is China's 3rd largest trading partner and takes about 19% of China's exports (1); about 10% of total exports are affected by US tariffs, so the impact is notable (1).

Q045(b). Wrong: being the largest exporter does NOT mean trade conflicts have no effect — higher tariffs raise costs and cut competitiveness, trade volume falls, factories may relocate (de-Chinaisation), and workers CAN lose jobs (2).

Q045(c). Two developed effects (higher costs/relocation; lower trade volume; weaker investment; higher prices) (2 each); one response: negotiation / good foreign relations / expanding domestic demand / diversifying markets (e.g. via the Belt and Road).
